Q) what is Hash code in Java?

Ans) A hash code in java is an integer value generated for every object by using the hash code() method of the object class.

It is used to identify an object and helps java store and retrieve objects efficiently in collections like HashMap, HashSet and HashTable.

Ex: String S = "Hello";
System.out.println(S.hashCode());